DELEGATES from Germany-based Fachhochschule Business School were in the city recently to expand their student exchange and internship programmes in India. As part of the trip, the delegates Klaus Lang and Bernard Wagemann visited software development company Extentia Information Technology to discuss possible exchanges in the future.

“Extentia has been associated with the Fachhochschule at Neu Ulm, Germany, as part of our Connect programme, where we invite students to do internships for several months with us,” said Extentia director Umeed Kothavala.

The Fachhochschule Neu Ulm is one of Germany’s leading business schools, with a focus on business studies and information management, and has close links with the industry. Lang and Wagemann also visited management-training institutes in Pune including the Neville Wadia Institute of Management Studies and Research, Symbiosis Institute of Business Management, Symbiosis Centre for Human Resource Development, Symbiosis Institute of Management Studies, Symbiosis Institute of Computer Studies and Research, and Indian Institute of Modern Management.

“Pune has always been popular among students in Germany due to the well-known academic and research institutions and also for its IT infrastructure and growth in the city. After our visit here, we felt that our students would certainly benefit from the practices defined and followed with the institutes and organisations here,” said Lang.
